Creator/Author/Artist John B. Henkels, Jr., founder of Henkels & McCoy

Description:

Autobiographical writing by John B. Henkels, Jr. founder of Henkels & McCoy Inc., one of the largest privately held engineering, network development and constructions firms serving the communications, information technology and utility industries in the United States.

packed pages of this book. Hurricanes, lawsuits, convicts, and trials every other page.

Anecdotes, moving or amusing, pile up as the effort that begins with trimming trees along rights of way in Philadelphia led to installing telephone communications in whole cities—so laying pipe lines across the country—to throwing power lines across great rivers—to building airfields here and abroad. Little jobs led to bigger, small contracts to huge construction projects.

John B. Henkels, Jr. writes as he talks, minutely. Mother wit and rare humor light and enrich the compelling story of An American Adventure.

Description:

This study will explore first the traditions that relate to the Clifton House and its predecessor, the Sandy Run Tavern.

The History of the Sandy Run Tavern and its Successor - The Clifton House
1770-1937

This work is dedicated to my wife, Jeanne, who not only relinquished her dining room table but then spent countless hours typing what I wrote and assembled on it.

This sketch of the tavern house is based on descriptions made in 1818 and 1850 and was created by George Simpson of Ireland.

Special thanks is given to Johnny Young of The Historical Society of Montgomery County, who helped me locate much of the data found in this study. And finally, to Jane and Jim Moulton, parents of our granddaughters, without whose computer this work would never have been completed.

Operations resume

Ambler Gazette article, dated 12/11/1924.
The J. E. Marsden Glass Works, has again started operations and on a greatly increased scale. Since the disastrous fire which swept the main portion of the works away, there has been going on a reconstruction to the point where work has again been resumed. The great furnace for the melting of glass was lighted and the motion glass is now ready to be molded and blown. During the reconstruction work much improved machinery was added to the plant which will enlarge the output greatly. Bowls, pie plates and tough glassware being made, but the manufacture of tumblers has been suspended for the present.
